

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image sensor includes a photosensitive area that receives incident light for detecting photons; and at least one micro-lens that substantially spans a peripheral region of the photosensitive area, and the at least one micro-
5 lens does not span a central portion of photosensitive area for focusing light from outside the peripheral region to the photosensitive area.